Feeding birds near buildings increases
their risk of colliding with untreated glass.

Birds that fly away after striking glass may still be hurt. Common injuries get worse with time and may kill the bird.
Contain injured birds and transfer them to a wildlife rehabilitation centre for care.

Here's what to do:

Make glass visible to birds! Apply a dense pattern of visual markers outside on the glass
without leaving any gaps wider than a bird.
Move bird feeders closer to the window.
